Technology

Cook, Little, Rosenblatt & Manson has extensive experience in representing technology-based businesses in a broad range of industries.

From helping a research and development company raise investment capital and commercialize its technology by forming a separate business, to negotiating the cross-licensing of a software database, we understand the unique and dynamic needs of technology-based companies. This experience helps us develop solid and creative solutions for our high-tech clients.

We assist technology clients with needs ranging from:

- Structured spinouts
- Software and other intellectual property license agreements
- Obtaining angel, venture capital and other financing
- Acquisitions, sales and mergers of technology companies
- Intellectual property
- Business formation and organization
- Equity and compensation arrangements
- Contract negotiation and preparation
